About me

I am a passionate learner. I am pursuing my career in the world of computer science through the web dev platform. I am a hard-working individual who is always interested in learning and growing my skillsets. I think that the web is the most cutting edge and suitable platform for building applications that help may people simultaneously achieving the purpose of providing information and entertainment without having need for separate storage in their device as only a browser and internet connection is needed for accessing a web app from any part of the globe.

Experience
